History of Froyle

Froli, as it was then known, is mentioned in the Domesday Book, but there is evidence of earlier settlements in the area. Stone Age and Bronze Age tools have been discovered in Lower Froyle. The remains of a Roman villa have been found at Coldrey, at the edge of the parish, and Norman pottery has been found at Baldwin in Hussey's Lane.

Indeed, the entry in the Domesday Book notes that Froli 'was ever there'. It is believed that widespread usage of the name Froyle dates to the early part of the 14th century. The Domesday Book (1086) records the Manor of Froyle being owned by Edward the Confessor and later on, by William the Conqueror.

In the 14th century the estate belonged to the Abbey of St Mary in Winchester and this gave rise to our church being dedicated to the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

In 1541 the estate was acquired from Henry VIII by the Jephson family on dissolution of the monasteries. There were various owners over the next two centuries, until in 1770 the Manor of Froyle was purchased by Sir Thomas Miller.

To a large extent the Miller family laid the foundation for the form and layout of Upper Froyle as it is today.

Upper Froyle

Sir Thomas' son, Sir Thomas Combe Miller was responsible for rebuilding the nave of the church in 1812 and his grandson, Sir Charles Hayes Miller, founded Froyle School in 1868.

At the turn of the last century, Upper Froyle was home to Sir Hubert Miller, who spent much time in Italy. He brought back many beautiful church vestments, as well as a number of statues of saints.

The statues, which are a key feature of Upper Froyle, were positioned on the outer walls of many of the houses, giving rise to its other name, 'The Village of the Saints'. (A leaflet showing the positioning and names of the statues can be found in the church).

In Lower Froyle, the Anchor Inn dates back to the 13th century and it is likely that it has been an ale house for much of this time.

During the 17th and 18th centuries, Lower Froyle gradually evolved into a farming settlement, serving several large farms including Brocas, Silvesters, Husseys and Hodges.

About Froyle

The Froyle Archive

www.froyle.com is the place to find out all about Froyle, past and present.

The site is divided into two areas; The Froyle Archive, which features the history of the village and people of Froyle, while Froyle Today deals with news, events and community information about the village in the 21st century.

The Froyle Archive holds a vast array of records, the majority of which are online (over 2000 pages and 4000 photographs & maps), including church records, censuses, wills, inventories, histories, telling the story of the village from before Domesday.

Froyle Today has a calendar of village events, local weather, details of church services, the village magazine, including a searchable archive of the past 13 years.

Village Magazine

A village magazine is published each month and delivered free of charge to all households. This is a great source of information about all that is going on in the village.

Parish Plan

A Froyle Parish Plan was prepared in 2013 that summarises the results of a village wide survey of what residents most appreciated about life in Froyle and what they would like to see in the future. The Plan can be viewed at http://communityplanning.froyle.com or a hard copy can be purchased by contacting The Clerk, Froyle Parish Council, at froyleparishclerk@yahoo.co.uk

Village Design Statement

At the same time as starting on the Parish Plan, work started on a Village Design Statement. This is a planning document and looks at the background to how future development should be considered from a planning and design perspective. The VDS is hopefully to be adopted by EHDC as part of planning guidance.

St Mary's Church

Froyle's ancient grade 1 listed church 'The Church of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary' is in Upper Froyle. It is part of a Benefice with Bentley and Binsted, with one vicar, Yann Dubreuil.

Yann encourages each parish to play to its strengths. Froyle has a strong 'high church' history. The church seeks to retain the more interesting parts of this legacy including strong choral, traditional services.

We also have a unique collection of 17th and 18th century church robes, altar frontals and associated items. Display cases and regular exhibitions allow these treasures to be appreciated by a wide audience.

The church community also has an enthusiastic team of bellringers, a choir, a textile conservation team, groups of flower arrangers and cleaners. (No particular qualifications are needed for joining in with any of these).

Looking forward the church aims to combine its sense of tradition with an informal accessibility and sense of fun in its worship in order to be relevant to as many people as possible. The annual open air Pet Service on the recreation ground and the monthly slightly noisy and chaotic Sunday school are examples of this approach.

Special church services are held at Easter, Christmas, Harvest Festival and Remembrance Sunday. These and other church related events such as the Harvest Supper, music evenings and a programme of Lent lunches, are also enjoyed by residents who are not regular worshippers.

For details on times of services, please refer to the village magazine.

A team of volunteers provides transport to medical appointments. A small donation is requested to help cover fuel and administration costs. To arrange a lift telephone 23440, if possible a week or so in advance, and your call will go through to the duty co-ordinator who will take details and find a driver. Further information from Gill Bradley 520484. We are always looking for more drivers!

Good Neighbour Scheme

The Froyle Good Neighbours Scheme provides support for residents of Froyle. Simply phone a number and get help with any small emergencies that may arise. These can include basic repairs/DIY, help with shopping and gardening, snow clearance and shortterm support with pets. The help is provided by our band of volunteers who should be able to solve most problems. When it is not possible for us to do this, because the problem involves approved trades such as plumbing and electricians, we will put you in touch with local trades people who can provide their services. The scheme is meant to provide shortterm assistance for those residents that cannot help themselves. For further information contact John Sexton 520098.

Winchester Refectory

We help out three times a year, serving coffee and tea, taking out food and clearing tables. If you would like to join the pool contact Madeleine Black 23371.
